

My project involves children. I used some information about left behind children as a starting point. I am doing this because I want to understand the current situation of left-behind children in China. They represent a group of forgotten and uncaring children, and I have donated money to these groups to help them before, which has raised my attention to this group, I wanted to know about them.

Children's Fantasy

I used colors and elements that children like, such as round balls and flowers to redesign.

I studied the details of Some children's clothing, and combined different brands of outfit to make collage to show the outline/silhouette.

the board on the left is a comparison between my childhood clothes and other children's clothes, you can clearly see the elements of colors and flowers

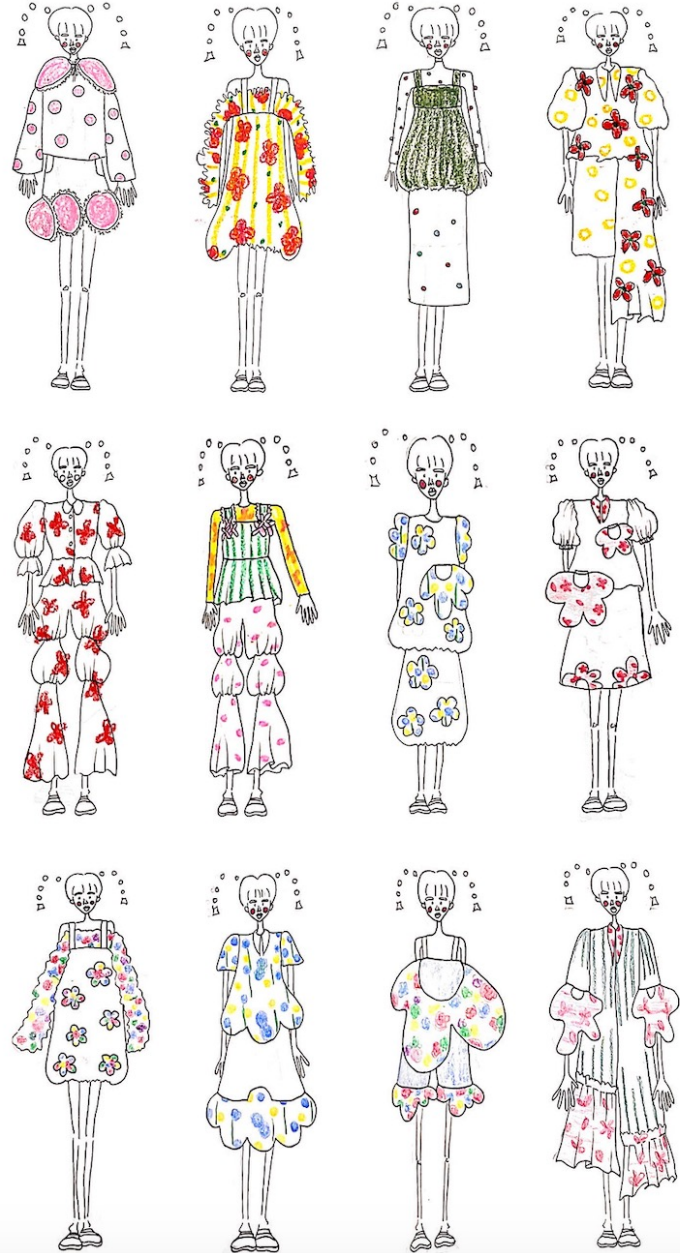

These are the prints I dripped with water colour on the paper. The colour blooming also feels like the flower is blooming.
